A NOTE FROM THE BOARD

We cannot but feel sad and disappointed by the reported behavior of a Hidden Trails resident toward a young man who lives in this community. The young man's father revealed that, for the second time, his son was accosted by an adult resident who, for no apparent reason, accused the young man of having / selling drugs. Being acquainted with the young man and his family, the only thing we believe he is "guilty" of, is walking to and from school while Black.

The members of the Board affirm our belief that Hidden Trails is a better community for being diverse. We believe that the more Hidden Trails looks like the population at large, the more representative we are of the entire State of California, the more preferable, the more desirable our neighborhood becomes.

We do not understand, we do not condone the meanness of spirit that would allow an adult to subject another human being, much less a minor, to abusive language and harassment. Other than implying a false sense of superiority, what purpose does that serve? Please take this opportunity to reach out to your neighbors, those who look like you and those who don't. Shake hands and commit to making this a safe community for everyone, especially for the kids.

DOGS AND GLASS

The Board has been notified by the owner of El Plantio, our landscaping service, of two unpleasant and dangerous situations recently encountered by his employees as they were working in the common areas and areas designated "restricted private with common maintenance".

In the first instance, a worker had to leave Hidden Trails to go home to clean up and change clothes when he inadvertently hit a pile of dog feces with a piece of equipment. This situation, obviously, could have been avoided if all dog owners did what most dog owners do in Hidden Trails and that is, clean up after their pets.

In the second instance, the worker luckily avoided a serious injury when he was cutting back some plants and shards of glass came flying through the air. Disposing of glass or other materials that can injure people in the common areas or in the restricted areas is a very bad habit to acquire.

Please! Let's keep our maintenance crew safe and on the job. Clean up after your pets and throw trash away in the appropriate containers. Thank you.
